Introduction

Audrey Morton,
Dementia Friendly Petersfield

The idea for a Dementia Directory for anyone who has been recently diagnosed with a form of dementia originally came from Dementia Champion, and indeed Coronation Volunteer Champion, Jeff Williams.

Tribute must be made to Jeff who worked tirelessly to improve the awareness, support, and information for anyone living with dementia, their families, friends, and carers in the local area. Sadly, Jeff passed away shortly after last year's Dementia Festival 2023, but his legacy continues.

This issue of the Dementia Directory has been brought completely up to date by dementia experts, East Hants District Council and Dementia Friendly Petersfield. Besides being a personal guide with note pages and prompts, it will signpost you to information, advice, and support in the East Hampshire area.

The impact of a diagnosis of dementia is different for everyone, some people may be pleased to at least have a diagnosis for the problems they have been experiencing while others may be feeling angry, afraid, lost and alone, everyone is different. The most common diagnosis of dementia is Alzheimer's Disease, but there are many different forms of dementia. Dementia affects the brain, but symptoms do vary from person to person and no two people experience dementia the same. However, please be assured there is support out there however you are feeling or experiencing.

Living with dementia does not necessarily mean that you are unable to make decisions about the future for yourself, but it is important to put plans in place and this guide will help in identifying some areas of importance such as lasting powers of attorneys.

Keeping active and socializing really helps one to live as well as possible with dementia and East Hampshire has an abundance of activities and groups listed in this directory.

As Jeff said, "if this booklet goes on to make life easier for just person, it will be worth the effort".

Councillor Adeel Shah,
Portfolio Holder for Community Development and Engagement at East Hampshire District Council

"The time after receiving a dementia diagnosis can be incredibly distressing and bewildering. However, it's crucial to know that support is available.

"You don't have to face this alone. I take pride in the collaboration between East Hampshire District Council, Dementia Friendly Petersfield, and other dementia specialists to create this resource. If this document succeeds in making life easier for even just one individual, all the effort will have been worthwhile."

How can I live with dementia?

To live with dementia, it is important that people use this booklet to access the support and guidance that is available in the local community.

This booklet will help people to understand more about that support and those services that are available to you in East Hampshire.

Use the contents page and contacts list to easily find the specific support or service that are available in East Hampshire.

On each page you will find a page checklist and a box for your personal notes.

My notes

How do I move forward with my diagnosis of dementia?

It is recommended to contact Hampshire Carers Support Service which is available for carers over 18 who look after individuals with long-term health conditions, including dementia, and is delivered by Princess Royal Trust for Carers.

The Princes Royal Trust for Carers (PRTC) will set up an emergency care plan. In the event of an emergency, the PRTC may provide a free care service for up to 48 hours to help resolve the situation. People can contact PRTC here: <https://carercentre.com/>.

The most important way people can help themselves is to access the support that is available in the community and not become isolated. There is no cure for dementia, but it has been proven that socialising can bring great benefits to people living with dementia and their families.

From page 26, there is a list of the local groups, that are available for people living with dementia and their families, in East Hampshire.

My notes

How do I tell my family and friends?

It may be difficult to come to terms with the diagnosis but when people feel more comfortable it is important to involve family members and close friends.

Some people may not want to accept it and they may not know what to say.

This can be a difficult period for everyone involved and some people may need time to adjust.

People may treat you differently, but this is because they don't understand what is happening to you. In time, people will adjust and accept what is happening.

People may find that they will lose contact with others and this could be because they don't do the things that they used to do such as work and hobbies or because they find it hard to stay in touch.

There is an opportunity to meet new people in the same situation through the support groups that are available.

It is important to become involved in the support groups at an early stage of the diagnosis. Try to focus on the positives and on the people that are there for you.

Page checklist

- Access local support groups

My notes

Can I still drive?

A diagnosis of dementia is not in itself a reason to stop driving. One in three people with dementia still drives. The most important thing is whether the person can still drive safely. However, over time, dementia affects the skills needed for safe driving. The common symptoms of dementia can affect all the skills needed for driving – this is why it is a legal requirement to inform the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) about the condition as soon as it is diagnosed. As dementia gets worse, it affects these skills even more. This means everyone with dementia will eventually be unable to drive safely.

How quickly this happens varies from person to person. However, most drivers with Alzheimer's disease will need to stop driving in the middle stage of dementia. Some types of dementia have certain early symptoms that mean an end to driving might be sooner.

If a person with dementia wants to keep driving, they must tell DVLA. The agency will ask about the person's medical information and decide if they are safe to drive.

Page checklist

- Inform the DVLA of your diagnosis
- Keep re-assessing your suitability to drive
- Visit: www.alzheimers.org.uk/get-support/staying-independent/driving-dementia

My notes

How do I put my affairs in order?

After adjusting to the diagnosis, it is important to start thinking about finances and how to manage money in the future.

There are several ways this can be done, and it is important to seek professional advice from Citizens Advice.

People may be entitled to a range of benefits and, depending on the circumstances, some will be means tested. Citizens Advice can help with this.

People with a diagnosis of dementia are entitled to a council tax rebate, East Hampshire District Council can help with the claim process.

It is recommended that people have an up to date will and set up a lasting power of attorney which will allow someone you trust to make decisions on your behalf when you are no longer able to. You may also consider setting up an advanced decision to refuse treatment or an advanced statement, which will allow you to have a say in your future medical care. It is recommended that you speak to your GP or a solicitor about this.

- Seek advice from Citizens Advice
- Claim council tax rebate
- Update will and set up lasting power of attorney
- Discuss advanced decisions

My notes

How do I keep active and well?

Being active is considered by many people to be vital in slowing down the progression of dementia.

Staying active can help to retain your skills and memory as well as improving self-esteem, sleep and wellbeing.

Whenever possible, keep doing what you enjoy even if you have to do it a little differently.

It is important to try and stay healthy with regular exercise and eating a balanced diet, what's good for the heart is good for the brain. If you smoke it is worth trying to stop.

Arrange regular check-ups with the GP, as well as regular dental, sight and hearing checks. Getting the annual flu and covid vaccination is important.

Having dementia doesn't mean you should feel ill, depressed or anxious if you do feel unwell it is important that you see your GP as soon as possible. Small things can make people feel very confused if they don't get help straight away.

There is lots of technology that can help people live well which includes electronic medication reminders, locator devices, automatic lights and shut off devices in case people forget to turn of the gas or taps.

- Investigate ways of staying active
- Arrange regular check-ups with the GP
- Discuss what technology could help with relevant professionals
- Contact social prescribers for support

My notes

How do I manage as my dementia progresses?

Dementia is progressive, which means that the symptoms will get worse over time. How quickly it progresses will vary greatly from person to person. Some people with dementia maintain their independence for many years.

Once you have contacted the support services that we have recommended they will follow you and support you through your journey.

As the condition progresses it is important to stay healthy and continue with regular exercise and a balanced diet.

Annual reviews are a key part of a person with dementia's care. In an annual review the GP will ask questions, do a medication review, check for new symptoms or changes in behaviour, and discuss planning ahead and support for carers.

It is also, important to maintain social contact, interests and keep to your routines.

Page checklist

- Look at Living with Dementia Toolkit
livingwithdementiatoolkit.org.uk
- Re-engage with available support services
- Discuss with your advisor what type of help would be most appropriate for you

My notes

How do I look after those who look after me?

Make sure the carer registers with their GP and seeks advice from the Princess Royal Trust for Carers in Hampshire who can put you in touch with a care support worker who will be able to support you.

Depending on your circumstances, your carer could be a partner, family member or a close friend and they need to identify that they are a carer and that there is support available. It is important that carers are identified for the valuable role that they provide because sometimes carers don't recognise this.

The carer needs to look after themselves and they can do this through peer support groups. It is important that they also keep healthy and continue to maintain social contacts with friends and family.

Page checklist

- The carer has registered with their GP
- We have sought advice from an advisor or support worker
- We have looked at peer support groups
- We are making time to keep healthy
- We are making time for friends and family
- Contact Princess Royal Trust for carers' respite

My notes

What if I am a veteran or serving member of the armed forces?

The British Legion offers a range of services for ex-service men, women and their families, one of which, is the Royal British Legion Admiral Nurse Service.

They provide specialist support, information and advice to the carers of people with dementia. All admiral nurses are registered nurses specialising in dementia. The service aims to help family carers gain the necessary skills to assist with dementia care with positive approaches in living well with dementia and improving quality of life.

The service has been developed in partnership with Dementia UK, a national charity, which promotes and develops admiral nursing.

To qualify for this service, the carer or person with dementia needs to be a beneficiary of the Royal British Legion. This includes anyone who has served in the British armed forces, their family and carers.

Part of this service is Kitbags – activity groups supporting ex-service men and women with dementia and their carers across Hampshire. This is an opportunity to reminisce around service life.

My notes

What if I am given a diagnosis of young onset dementia, how is that different and what support is there?

This diagnosis is given to people before they are 65 years old. Young onset dementia can affect people in different ways, it will depend partly on the type of dementia you have been diagnosed with.

People with a diagnosis of young onset dementia and those supporting them may be entitled to a range of benefits, some of which are means tested. Citizens Advice can help with this.

There are support groups specifically for young onset dementia which you can research yourself online. If you are in employment employers are required by law to make reasonable adjustments to give the support to carry on with your role. You can keep up to date with current legislation and find out information on other types of dementia here: www.dementiauk.org/information-and-support/types-of-dementia/ and here: www.raredementiasupport.org

Providing NHS services

WHAT IS SOCIAL PRESCRIBING?

Social Prescribing connects people to organisations, groups and services that meet their practical, social and emotional needs.

Our team is passionate about supporting our patients, by taking a non-medical, holistic approach to improve their health and wellbeing.

At the initial appointment, we give you the time to let us know what matters to you. We then help to connect you to relevant support.

Appointments are available at community drop-in sessions, face to face in surgery and on the telephone.

PLEASE NOTE

We are not an emergency service. If you are in crisis, please contact:
